Creating a New Dialog

After selecting Dialog Editor mode, use the plus sign icon to create a new dialog.

Click on the plus sign. The text box below will appear on your screen.

Create New Dialog

A screenshot of a "Create New Dialog" form. The form has a light blue background and contains several input fields and dropdown menus. The fields are: "Title" (text input), "English Title (optional)" (text input), "Orientation (optional)" (text input), "Book" (dropdown menu with "-- Please Choose a Book --"), "Module" (dropdown menu with "-- Please Choose a Module --"), and "Keep Public/Private?" (radio buttons for "Public" and "Private", with "Private" selected). At the bottom of the form are two buttons: "Cancel" (dark grey) and "+ Add" (green). A blue bracket on the right side of the form groups the "Title", "English Title", and "Orientation" fields. A blue arrow points from a text box on the right to the "+ Add" button.

Enter the metadata for the dialog you are going to create.
Click on Add when you have finished.

Dialog Mode

The Interpreter System can also be used to practice monolingual target language dialogs without interpretation. Developers must first proceed through the steps outlined on pages 5-8. The Interpreter System will then allow users to choose either interpreter or dialog.

Developers may want to use the dialog mode to ensure that the scenarios they create are logical and cohesive as stand-alone dialogs.

Highlight and double click on the scenario that you wish to review.

To view an interpretation scenario as a monolingual dialog, click on the Interpreter/Dialog tab. Select Dialogs from the drop-down menu.

The screenshot shows the netprof interface with the following elements:

- Navigation: Home > French > French > Interpreter / Dialogs
- Buttons: Interpreter / Dialog (dropdown), Editor, Record, QC

Developers may now view the dialog as users will see it. The scenario will display in Listen mode as a Dialog. Users may also select Interpreter mode.

Each turn in the Target Language will be displayed. Users may listen to the dialog by clicking the arrow icon. The system will highlight the text that corresponds to the audio that is being played.

Users may also Rehearse, Perform, and view their Scores while in the Interpreter/Dialog mode.
